Feeding Alfalfa to Hogs.

W. R. Robinson, of Hanford, in writing to the Pacific Rural Press, gives his experience in feeding hogs with alfalfa hay, having tried it with about thirty head, consisting of thoroughbreds, grades and common-tule hogs, both old and young, which were shut up in a small corral and fed. He says: They took to it pretty well after a day's starving, and seemed to eat a considerable quantity of it, eating both leaves and stalks when the stalks were fine enough. They drank a considerable quantity of water, and during the middle part of the day seemed satisfied and contented. The young tules first showed signs of becoming thinner than the full grown tules. The grades still kept up a respectable appearance and thoroughbred were moderately fat. This went on for about two months, then they all refused to eat the stalk at all, and cleaned up the leaves, which they did more for a living than for fondness for the food. They showed evident signs of becoming tired of the food. The young tules got to so low a condition of vitality that it became evident that a month or so would starve them to death. Grade pigs and full grown tules were thin but moderately strong. Thoroughbreds were strong and moderately fat. However, after keeping them on this feed for nearly five months, we considered we had given the alfalfa a fair test, and arrived at the following conclusions: That alfalfa hay alone is no proper food for hogs, old or young, when fed in the dry state, and poor food even when soaked in water before being fed; that, though pigs will live on it for a considerable time, they don't grow; that only the hay cut young and with very fine stalk and plenty of leaf is at all fit for food for hogs. It might be fed to advantage when fed with corn or Egyptian corn, pumpkins, etc., and in such cases might prove advantageous, but it requires more bulk than a hog can find it convenient to take in order to find sufficient nourishment to keep him in growing condition.

Judge Townsend, of South Carolina, has overruled the motions for new trials in the cases of Cardozo and Congressman Smalls. Motions in arrest of judgment were then made. The Court holds these under advisement until the 26th inst.

Communism Full Blown.

(Philadelphia Press.)

In a woodland on the Darby road, in one of the most picturesque sections of country in the vicinity of Philadelphia, there is a curious community or settlement of tramps. During the day they lounge around fires of brushwood, made in a little stony hollow, sometimes singing, sometimes cooking or mending, or washing, sometimes drinking. Occasionally some of them, spurred by appetite, or tired of idleness, go out into the field and gather herbs or flowers, and bring them to the city to sell, and with the money received buy whisky, upon which they all get drunk, and make the woods ring with songs and boisterous laughter or savage cries.

The size of this motley gathering varies with the time and the seasons. It hardly ever numbers less than twenty, and has reached to eighty. There are men and women, old and young. Nearly all day long, as I have said, they linger around their fires in the wood, and when the weather is not unpleasantly cold they also sleep out under the trees; but in the winter, and when storms of great violence occur, they take refuge in barns in the neighborhood. Upon a beautiful hillside knoll they set up a little cabin made of logs and the barks of trees. In the stony hollow in the side of a hill, where they pass much of their time, they have kettles and pans and other household utensils, and a wooden tripod upon which to hang a kettle over a fire, and strung from tree to tree, lines upon which to hang their clothes to dry. They fare well. They beg from the farmers in the neighborhood, who dare not refuse them, and fear to murmur at their demands. Any offense to them might result in the burning of the barn or home of the helpless offender. It is no wonder that a man should live in dread with a gang of lawless vagabonds about his door and no protection near for his wife or daughters.

This community seems to be governed by a master and mistress—the latter an old and white-haired wretch who has been known in the vicinity for years. They receive the alms of all the others, and refuse admittance into the circle to such applicants as do not for any reason please their fancy. Of course their authority is not always submitted to, but to a great extent they are the rulers of the colony. The society generally is not inviting, and individually it is repulsive. So many low-browed, soot-faced, savage human beings one seldom meets within the same day. If an honest laborer looks contemptuously at them, they scowl in return or mutter threateningly; if a curious stranger go too near their residence they warn him off; or if he laughs at their patched garments flapping in the breeze, they rise in their majesty and pour forth their indignation. Now, to break up this settlement is a question which agitates the minds of the farmers round about for a long time. Winter does not destroy it. All last winter the tramps could be tracked by footprints in the snow from the barn where they slept to the hollow in the woods, where they had gathered together an immense mound of leaves and withered brush. No one is willing to order them off. It is not safe. They have been tolerated until patience has given way, and now how to get rid of them is a problem yet to be solved.

Warrants have been issued for the arrest of the proprietors of Fifth Avenue, St. Nicholas, Astor House, Hoffman House, Brunswick, Delmonico, St. James, Grand, Gilsey and Windsor Hotels, of New York, charged with violating the excise law by selling liquor on Sunday.

Proposition of the Central and Union Pacific Railroad Companies.

Washington, November 17.—At the meeting of the Senate Judiciary Committee to-day Storrs presented a draft of a bill embodying a proposition that the Central and Union Pacific Railroad Companies shall reconvey to the government the unsold railroad lands between the 103d meridian and the eastern boundary of California, amounting to about 6,000,000 acres, the government crediting the companies with the aggregate price thereof at $1 25 per acre, and in addition the companies shall pay into the Treasury of the United States, semi-annually, a sum which, together with this amount and half the cost of government transportation, with interest on all of these sums, compounded semi-annually, will be sufficient to liquidate their indebtedness to the government by 1905.

Sidney Dillon, president of the Union Pacific, and Mr. Huntington, vice president of the Central Pacific, strongly contested the right of Congress to pass any bill altering the terms of the original charter, but each pledged their respective companies to faithfully perform all of the obligations proposed in the draft of the bill presented by Storrs, provided Congress would pass it as a substitute for Thurman's bill.

A representative of the first-mortgage bondholders of the Kansas Pacific Company said they had no objections to Thurman's bill, but if any new legislation was to be had conferring additional benefits and advantages on the Central and Union Pacific companies, by extending the time for the payment of their indebtedness till 1905, he would suggest that it should be made conditional upon their compliance with the law of Congress which requires the main line and branches to be operated as one connected and continuous line, without any discrimination, either in favor of or against any company.

The lands embraced in the above area of 6,000,000 acres lie between a point near Julesburg on the Union Pacific, in the western part of Nebraska and the western boundary of this state. These lands lie in Nebraska, Colorado, Wyoming Territory, Utah and Nevada, principally in this state.

We are opposed to the proposition for the reason that this part of the railroad magnates' proposition is, in plain language, an attempt to defraud the government out of what justly belongs to it. Many parties in Virginia city and Carson are signing a petition emanating from the C. P. folks, praying that the government receive the lands in question, as far as this State is concerned.

The C. P. and U. P. obtained their immense land grant some fifteen years ago, and since that time have sold all the most desirable lands embraced in that grant. They have 6,000,000 acres remaining which are of little value to them. In fact, it is almost a burden, since they have to pay taxes on it, and as it is nearly all desert land, and can scarcely be disposed of at any price, they are very anxious, when virtually forced to pay their indebtedness to the government, to turn over this comparatively worthless land at a high price to their great benefactor. This matter is one of considerable interest to the people of this State, inasmuch as the main part of the land in question lies in this State, and if received by the government would deprive this State of a handsome revenue in the way of State and County taxes.

The public reason assigned for such egregious act appeared in the Enterprise, Gold Hill News and Carson Appeal, and is that either the Government or the R. R. Co. should own the land in question. We confess we may be obtuse in not being able to see this matter in the light of our cotemporary journalist, but if such reasoning obtained why not have the lands now owned by small land owners along the line of these railroads conveyed to the government or to the railroads? We have been informed by those who ought to know, that the proposition of the above companies would be a little tough on the government, but that a representative from this State, now in Congress, had intimated that the government in the event of its acceptance of these lands, would donate them to this State. Mildly speaking, this is a little slippery. If the lands are of worth the government should, and unquestionably would, keep them. If they are of little value, what particular benefit would they be to this State, and how would we be able to receive from them as much revenue as we now receive? If they are scarcely marketable in the railroad company's hands, would they be more so did they belong to the State? We may be in error in our position, but are open to conviction.

State News.

Timothy Martin, Samuel N. Calvin and Philipp Deidesheimer of Virginia, S. Buckley of Reno, and John Wagner, of Carson, have been adjudged bankrupts.

The Belcher Company has levied eleven assessments, aggregating $1,813,400, and declared thirty-eight dividends, aggregation $15,397,200.

William Dennis, a resident of Austin, has become violently insane, and will be sent to Stockton.

A Mrs. Radleigh of Markleville, California, committed suicide by taking strychnine, while visiting at the residence of Mr. John Childs, in Carson Valley, Wednesday night last.

John Hubbard, who was convicted in Tuscarora of cruelty to pigs, has been fined $50 in the Justice Court.—Review.

Two ladies in Virginia City, a mother and daughter, are engaged upon a new translation of the Bible. This is just what Virginia has been needing for a long time.

Carson has collected $12,000 license on faro and other gambling games since July 24th, 1875.

By implication C. C. Powning of the Reno Journal, announces himself a Republican candidate for the office of Lieutenant-Governor.

Carson in Trouble.

What do the Board of Trustees propose to do about repealing that ordinance in regard to the Street Inspector? We pause for a reply. The city, as we said before, does not need such an office. We heard, on the street that almost every taxpayer had signed the petition. The wishes of the people who pay the bills ought to be considered first of all. Gentlemen, repeal the ordinance.—Carson Appeal.

Our Carson neighbors are having a little warfare over the appointment or non-appointment of a Street Inspector, as appears from the above. A city ordinance makes provision for such an office, and gives its incumbent $120 per month. To date Policeman Butts has, in addition to his other duties, faithfully attended to the duties of Street Inspector. But one of the late members of the Board (so we are informed by a Carson gentleman) wants the fat office himself, and to receive this office resigned from the Board of Trustees. Mr. Slater, who was elected to fill Mr. St. Clair's place, favors St. Clair for Street Inspector. Dunning, a member of the Board, keeps a lumber yard, and advocates St. Clair's cause. Beam, another member, has a team and he favors St. Clair. The two remaining members are opposed to him. Both Carson papers are against the spending of $120 per month to favor a job, and the majority of taxpayers and business men oppose any change. The Board have the power, and a majority, and may carry their point in spite of the strong opposition. We give the above as related to us Sunday while at the Capital, but, of course, are not a party to either faction.

The Republican Senators have had a second caucus on the President's action in appointing southern men to office. Jones, of this State, made a most bitter speech against Hayes. Spencer echoed Jones' sentiments. Edwards and Hamlin criticised the reply of the President to the caucus committee, and insisted that the Senators should insist on their constitutional rights. The body of the caucus, however, favored conservative action, and believe the President honest, and conscientiously working for the good of the country and the Republican party. The Democrats hold a caucus meeting to-night.

The friends of the silver bill in the Senate are very confident that it will pass that body by a decisive majority. Senator Jones says that he knows forty-four Senators who will vote for its passage, and that he believes it will go through when a vote is reached by over a two-thirds vote.

The Senate amendment to the House bill, limiting the number of men in the army to 25,000, instead of 30,000, passed Saturday in the House. Thus the army remains unchanged. Sheridan wanted 50,000, instead of the present number.

To-morrow we will have the promised local on the direct railroad.

The New Conductor.

[S. F. Post.]

The last red car was moving off. "Get aboard!" sang out the conductor; "take you right through to the bone-yard. Nice moonlight night; grave-stones will be out bright to-night, all the epitaphs plainly visible. All right; here we go, then. Start 'em up, Bill! Tickets please—thank you. Next lady, I say old fellow," shaking a passenger, "I'll trouble you to wake up and ante. Now, why don't you sit up straight and look respectable. Nice company all around you here; everything pleasant as I can make it; you're gettin' right along to Lone Mountain at a good fair jog; what more do you want for six and a quarter cents? That's right; now keep awake." Going far, madam? Hyde street; we'll waitz you down there in ten minutes by the turret clock.

"My bloomin' pal, you'll have to move that cigar out into the front balcony. The ladies rather object to it in the drawing room. What's that? You won't? And profane about it, too? Well, now!" And he collared the young sprig and shot him out to the rear platform. "Now you stand up there and finish your little Havana peaceable like; and no more profanity, or I'll tow you astern up Geary street hill, and you'll look like an old saw-log that's been through an ice jam."

The cigar chap got off a few blocks further on, and I said, "You seem lively to night, conductor."

"Pretty much the same every night so far," he replied.

"Then you are a new hand on this line? The company must think a great deal of you—such an active man?"

"Well, if they do, they don't show it. I've rode the Methodist circuit up in the lumber region of Wisconsin, preaching for $100 a year, and chopping in the pineries all Winter to keep from starving and freezing, and I'm blessed if it isn't a better job than this. I have been here a week and they are hard to please. I've been cautioned to go slow, whatever that means. They told me when I hired I must be courteous to the passengers and enforce the rules strictly. Now, stranger, can I take the time to go and sit down by the women and talk to them all through the trip, or stop and argue with every man that wants to smoke? Not much. I'll make things cheerful in a general kind of way and more I can't do."

"Whoop! here we are! Change cars for Lone Mountain! Here, old man, wake up; you'll go through to Lone Mountain without changing cars if you don't drink less gin. Good night, stranger."

Lieutenant-General Sheridan, in his annual report to the Adjutant-General of the army, dated October 27th, gives a detailed account of the operations of the army in the West and on the Rio Grande during the past year. He says that in the Department of Texas the usual troubles on the Rio Grande have occurred. Cattle run loose by thousands on our side of the river, and Mexicans and Indians cross over and steal them. This gives rise to all sorts of criminalities and re-criminalities and international questions, which with the continual revolutions, makes an unsettled condition of affairs on that border.

Judge Sawyer, of the United States Circuit Court, has decided that the Central Pacific Company, by virtue of the Congressional grant of its right of way over public lands, is entitled to the exclusive use and occupation of the land within 200 feet on each side of the track. A person who ventures to build on, or improve land within that distance of the road track without leave of the railroad company, is liable to be ousted out and perhaps sued for damages.

A Paris date of Nov. 17th says: The resignation of the Ministry is deemed the first concession to public opinion. President MacMahon seems altogether opposed to violence. This morning he in conversation with an old friend scouted the idea of a coup d'etat as purposeless.

Conrad Popperhausen, late owner of the Long Island Railroad, has failed and on the 17th inst. petitioned to be adjudicated a bankrupt; liabilities, $3,500,000; assets, $7,250,000, mostly in stock of the Long Island Railroad. What the assets will realize is very uncertain.

The dividend and accrued interest due Nevada holders of Centennial stock can now be obtained by calling at the agency of the bank of California. Unless called for before the 1st of February next, stock holders will forfeit their claims, as the books will then be closed and returned to Philadelphia.

Rev. S. P. Kelley is now acting as local reporter for the Carson Appeal. Mr. K. is an active, intelligent news-gatherer, and sends in spicy and interesting copy.

Two Young Lovers.

Quite an amusing episode has lately occurred in the quiet and unostentatious suburban village known as Prospect Park. James Broady has a daughter, aged 13, who for several months has been receiving, against the wishes of her parents, the attentions of a young man named George Barrus. The young man having been forbidden the society of his adored, it is said that his wooing was thereafter done in secret. The result was a repetition of the old story: Clandestine meetings, arrangements for the future and finally an elopement. The parties went to Chicago, and there, although George was only 19, he obtained the necessary license and a magistrate to perform the customary ceremony, and then the couple returned to the house of the unsuspecting parents, as man and wife, for the ordinary forgiveness, but the fond parent was absent. Not long after a team came dashing down the streets of Wheaton, containing an occupant who seemed to be possessed of something akin to seven devils, but on inquiry it was ascertained that James Broady was the driver of the team, and wished to see the Police Magistrate at once. To the latter Mr. Broady stated that his daughter had eloped, and with her husband, had robbed her father's house of nearly all its contents, and that he wished a warrant for the arrest of the guilty parties. The warrant was issued, the parties arrested and brought before the bar of the court, and a preliminary examination made. It appeared from the testimony, however, that nothing had been taken but a few engravings which belonged to the young lady, and the defendants were discharged, the Court remarking that he had no jurisdiction to punish parties for getting married, even if they were young and guileless.—Chicago Times.

THE SMALL THINGS.—Every farmer should have a small room, tight and warm, which he can lock and where he can keep his small tools. Then he wants a good, solid work-bench, with an iron vise on one side and a wooden one on the other. For iron-working he wants a solid piece of iron for an anvil, a seven-pound steel-face hammer, a riveting hammer, one large and one small cold-chisel, two or three punches from one-fourth to three-eighths inch, a rimmer and countersink, to be used with bit-stock; a screwplate that will cut a screw from one-fourth to three-eighths inch; then with roundiron of the various sizes and ready made nuts, he can make any bolt he wishes. For carpenter work he wants a square, a shaving horse, drawing knife, a set of planes, augur from one-half to two inches, a fine hand saw, with coarse crosscut and rip saw, large crosscut for logs, and a grindstone.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

Hurdy Den Closed.

Saturday night the dance house on Second street opened for its victims but had run only a short time when several Chinese bombs assured the "boss" and her base advisers that the people of this town meant that this den should no longer prove a nuisance. By some means one or more of the lamps were upset and the counter set on fire. A number of persons drug it into the street and a number helped themselves to liquor and cigars. Some one rang the fire bell and out came the boys with the engine. All was made ready to give the brothel a handsome washing out, but those having authority in the matter thought it best not to do so. We trust that this infamous place is now forever closed. One man recently lost his life there. The one who committed the deed awaits his trial and the county must pay the expense. If our citizens encourage a den which opens its doors to the most depraved class of society, our town must suffer the consequences. Lawlessness is not to be encouraged, but the law may occasionally find effective support, and the interests of society be advanced by properly controlled immediate action. We are not aware that any one who took part in preventing the dance house from running, had any spite against the "boss," or the lessor, Smith Hill, but they desired to abate a nuisance and we are glad to say that they have done so. Now let peace and order prevail there, and also at the Italian house on Virginia street. There is no sense in tolerating a positive nuisance, and if the law can't abate it, the people should.

DISTRICT COURT. — The District Court opened to-day to a good house. The murder case of the two Italians, whose names we have forgotten, was called up for trial and a jury obtained, then the attorney hung fire for a time over a youthful interpreter. The case is one of considerable interest. The defendants are accused of having murdered Galli Lucio, several weeks ago. The murdered man was cruelly beaten to death by some blunt instrument. The circumstances were very peculiar and more or less shrouded in mystery. Attorneys Boardman and Haydon appear for the defendants, District Attorney Cain for the State. The court room is crowded with Italians and more or less garlic order.

SAD DEATH. — Just as we were leaving Virginia city yesterday evening we learned that a boy named Joe Blakely was accidentally but fatally shot in the back of the head. Joe is said to have been a bright boy of 13 years, and was a marker in Legg & Knight's shooting gallery, on O street. At the time of the sad accident he was at his post. It seems that he had marked the spot where one man had shot and then stepped back. The same or another party drew of to fire, when Joe for some unknown reason stuck his head in front of the board and received the fatal wound. It is probable that he wanted to alter his mark in some way and presumed that he had time to do so. The killing of poor little Joe was purely accidental.

Mr. Chas. Bock, of Grass Valley, has settled with us and proposes to give instruction in brass band music to a class of young men. He has been very successful in Grass Valley and comes highly recommended. He furnished the music at the State fair last year. He also will furnish excellent music for balls and parties. See advertisement elsewhere.

Sheriff Sias, of Elko County, passed through here yesterday morning with four men for the State Prison. G. W. Meverly sentenced for three years; W. Foley one year for burglary; L. Beal two years for attempt at burglary, and J. Davis, for attempt to kill, five years, and one year for housebreaking.

TO START UP. — The new reduction works at the Nevada Quicksilver Mine, near Steamboat Springs, will be fired up to-day or to-morrow. The work of reducing the quicksilver will perhaps not commence for several days.

Seven hoodlums attempted to run the International Hotel Friday night. Five left town, and two were sent to jail for 15 and 17 days respectively.

From the Atlantic and Pacific Telegraph Co.

Attention is called to assessment No. 7 of the Central Drain Ditch Co. The Trustees levy an assessment of $5 per share, to be paid either in coin or labor. The assessment becomes delinquent Saturday, December 1st.

The Congressional Lyceum will hold its next regular meeting at the District Court room to-morrow evening at 7 o'clock. These meetings are well attended and we trust will continue to prove interesting and profitable.

The civil case of R. C. Johnson vs. J. E. Jones, G. W. Hepperly et al. claim Justice R's attention this afternoon. Mr. Cossett appears for the plaintiff, and Mr. S. A. Mann for the defendant. The plaintiff's attorney was often humorous but the Major was quite sober, and maintains the dignity of the law, with as much gravity and avoidance of any other man.

WILD SCENE IN A COURT. — At Auburn (N. Y.), November 17, the case of Cora Young, indicted for shooting her paramour, was given to the jury at 4 o'clock. The case of Barr, for the murder of Keeper Caster at the prison, who pretends to be insane, was brought into Court. At 6 the jury entered with a verdict of acquittal for Cora. It was received with loud applause. She fainted, and during the confusion Barr tried to escape, and a struggle of several minutes took place with the Sheriff's officers. Chains were obtained and he was shackled amid wild excitement and the trial proceeded.

AGENT. — W. J. Marsh has been authorized by the well known musical firm of Sherman & Hyde, to effect sales for all their instruments on any terms given at their home, including the Weber, Sherman & Hyde and Cottage Gem Pianos, and Standard Organs. He will sell any of these instruments on such easy installments that everybody can buy with a little effort.

TO THE RANCHER. — The Banner Mill Company, of Boca, Cal., have determined to make a specialty of fencing, and with that view offer to the ranchers of Washoe county a superior article of Red Fir, acknowledged to be the best lumber in any market for the purpose named. The price will be found another inducement in comparison with other varieties. Address, Banner Mill Co., or R. P. M. Greeley, Boca, Cal. No other mill company this side of the mountains has this variety of lumber for sale.
